Going Off the Deep End

September 2017

By Chic Miller

It's Monday morning, and off to work you must go. You've spent the weekend showering your best pal with an abundance of love and attention as if he could "store it up" for when you are away. As you waltz out that door, you can't help but reach down and give him just one more show of love, assuring him that you'll be home soon.

But hold on there, Pardner – not so fast. Your best buddy has a plan of his own. He'll find plenty to do while you're away. This plan begins by throwing a tantrum, pitching a fit, and basically "going off the deep end". The possibilities are endless. His plan includes shrieking, barking, howling, whining, chewing on furniture, tearing up pillows, pacing, knocking over the trash can, digging up carpet and urinating on anything that doesn't move. He may also try to leap through a window or screen, just to follow you. A very expensive, frustrating, and dangerous "plan", to say the least.

It's called separation anxiety. A common problem in dogs. Be assured that it is not his goal to "get even". He's simply relieving anxiety. This destructive behavior is his way of letting you know that he is panicking, terrified that you won't come back.

The damage is usually done within the first half hour following your departure. Adopted or rescued dogs that have been passed from home to home seem to demonstrate this act of anxiety more often than secure, one-owner dogs.

But, not to worry – I have a few simple solutions that just might remedy this unacceptable behavior.

*First and foremost, departures should be kept quiet and calm. This means no drama.

*Homecomings should be matter of fact, relaxed, and nonchalant.

*Try leaving for short outings – each time extending the duration of your absences. He will soon relax, reassured that you will, indeed, be coming back.

*I have heard that Thunder Shirts have a calming effect – worth a try.

*A large spacious, shaded kennel for short stays might be a possibility.

*Keeping him occupied with a large knuckle bone or a toy designed to be stuffed with Cheese Whiz or peanut butter will occupy his time for hours on end. Give it to him as you leave. He just might start looking forward to your departure.

*There's an old saying that says "A tired dog is a good dog". A brisk walk or a game of fetch the ball just before you leave might wear him down a bit.

*Young Livings essential oils: Peace and Calming, Lavender, Ylang Ylang, or Stress Away can be used in a diffuser or rubbed onto your hands (2 drops essential oil, 10 drops coconut oil). Simply pet your pet. Leaves coat shiny and glossy and smells great!

If you have tried the above tricks with no success, please do not give up on your pal. It's time to contact a certified dog trainer. They are knowledgeable and affordable.

Above all, be patient and persistent. Many dogs have overcome separation anxiety to become calm and trusting family members that will never again go off the deep end.

Get into Fall with The Grange

Mark your calendars with highlighters, colored ink, stickers, lights or whatever suits your fancy but make sure that Sept 9 is circled. Why? It's the Ono Grange's Annual Pre-Hunt Dinner and Dance!! Bring a partner or find one there and two step the night away after enjoying an amazing (and inexpensive) tri-tip dinner. Dinner will begin at 5pm and go to 7pm with the dance immediately following from 7pm to 11pm. Music for the dance will feature everyone's favorite Teddy Fox and The Coyote Band. Pre-dance music will be provided by The Gemstone Girls. During the dance, there will be raffle prizes given away, get your tickets at the dance for $1 each. The big raffle will be held at 9pm and the following will be given away; Sig Sauer 380 ACP, Savage 17HMR, half a hog (will be ready in March, and $250 off a set of 4 tires including a wheel alignment. Tickets are still available for $5 each and can be bought from any Grange member or call 396-2322. Get your tickets before they are all sold out! Help the Grange build a new foundation for the Hall so it will be around for many more years.

Once you have recuperated from the dance start going through your closets, garages, shops and storage to pull out all your unwanted and unused items for the Ono Grange's Community yard sale being held on Saturday, September 30 from 8am to 1pm. Spaces are $10 each and can be reserved by calling 396-2322. A meal deal lunch will be available for a mere $5. What you think is junk is the next person's treasure and your treasure too when you get paid!

Finally get ready to do some holiday shopping at the Ono Grange's Craft Expo on November 18. Get a head start on your gift buying or finish it up with unique items from jewelry, soaps, sundries, clothes, candles, food and more. The kiddos can even get their face painted while you shop inside the hall. If you would like to be a vendor call Suzanne at 378-4476 for more information.
